Ardal o Harddwch Naturiol Eithriadol

Yn 1957, dynodwyd rhan o Benrhyn Llyn yn Ardal o Harddwch Naturiol Eithriadol (AHNE) o dan Ddeddf Parciau Cenedlaethol a Mynediad i Gefn Gwlad 1949. Prif bwrpas y dynodiad yw cynnal a gwella harddwch naturiol ond mae'r dynodiad hefyd yn rhoi sylw i warchod a chynnal bywyd gwyllt, nodwedddion hanesyddol a diwylliant lleol tra yn cymryd ystyriaeth o anghenion economaidd a chymdeithasol y cymunedau lleol.

Mae AHNE Llyn yn ardal o tua 15,000 hectar mewn arwynebedd. Y prif resymau dros ddynodi'r ardal yn AHNE oedd yr arfordir hardd ac amrywiol a'r brynau igneaidd sy'n britho'r Penrhyn. Wrth gwrs mae lluo rinweddu eraill hefyd yn gysylltiedig â'r ardal.

Mabwysiadwyd y fran goesgoch, aderyn prin sy'n gynhenid i Llyn, fel arwyddlun AHNE. Am fwy o wybodaeth am yr ardal, a'r gwaith a weir gan Wasanaeth AHNE, Cyngor Gwynedd gweler y safle we:

An Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty

In 1957 part of the Llyn Peninsula was designated as an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty (AONB) under the National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act 1949. The main purpose of the AONB designation is to preserve and enhance natural beauty but the designation also aims to safeguard wildlife, historic features and culture while taking account of local economic and social needs.

The Llyn AONB covers an area of around 15,000 hectares. The main reasons for designating the area as an AONB were the beautiful and varied coastline and the igneous hills which are a prominent feature of the landscape. However there are a whole range of other qualities also associated with Llyn.

The chough, a rare species which is indigenous to Llyn was adopted as the AONB logo. For more information about the area, and the work carried out by Gwynedd Council's AONB Service, please refer to the website: www.ahne-llyn-aonb.org
